

Supreme Court intervenes, takes note of migrants' plight

The Supreme Court asked the central and state governments to provide adequate food, shelter and transport free of cost to the migrants who are still stuck on highways for lack of transport.

Taking suo motu cognisance of the plight of migrants, who were left stranded when the Centre imposed the nationwide lockdown from March 25, the court on Tuesday cited lapses and inadequacies in dealing with migrants and asked the central and state governments to give an account of all that they have done for the workers so far.
